

The 'eleMEK' is a modular library system for digital documents. The Library, University of Miskolc is reorganizing its local digital collections and setting up new ones from our electronic text-books, documents, publications, manuals, etc. with 'eleMEK', which was supported by National Information Infrastructure Development Program (NIIF). Our goal is the high quality service for students, researchers and professors. We have high hopes about facilitating their works with it, because the digital documents can be accessed over a common user interface, having processed and stored with one system. It ensures various access levels (eg. limitless, inner campus, password protected) by decision of creators, using Creative Commons licenses as legal status and access control as software firewall.
