Adaptation problems of KÖZTAURUSZ, the possibilities of conversions among different classification system types.

Wider and wider user groups are starting to use KÖZTAURUSZ within the Hungarian librarian community. On the other hand, increasing number of users provoking some problems to build and reconstruct KÖZTAURUSZ. Each institution has created and manages its own classification practice. By this way there are more and more challenges for the thesaurus constructors. Some needs of the special disciplines show clearly the lacks and dissensions of the unique Hungarian subject-heading system.

The National Library as the main KÖZTAURUSZ managing and users' institution wants to develop a KÖZTAURUSZ user coordinating group by an equivalent organizational structure by all of the user institutes making organized common solutions related to the similar tasks.

This presentation shows the developing results made by the National Széchényi Library about the equivalence of the classification systems by natural and synthetic languages.
