The new service of the National Széchényi Library: The Database of Humanities

The National Széchényi Library plans to set up an online library service answering a demand in the scientific field of humanities and social sciences. This database will provide bibliographic data on articles of the related serial publications (periodicals, yearbooks) published in Hungary and abroad. The Database of Humanities will possibly provide a complete and up-to-date source for learned and interested users, as well.

The new service will work on library co-operation. The model of this harmonized activity will be planned and worked out by the Department of Special Bibliographies in the Humanities, a unit of the Directorate of Collection Development and Processing. The informatical background will be provided by the developing team of the Bodza framework system.
