

Regulatory challenges in the digital development - with special regard to the copyright problems

Every step forward of the technical development has brought about a significant change in copyright. The most important result of the digitalisation is the possibility of making perfect or almost perfect copies, the development of technical protection against unlawful uses, and the unlimited access to the works. The copyright law just like earlier tries to keep up with the challenges. The question is, whether it has stepped on the right path or whether it can really follow the technical improvement. The presentation is searching for the answers to these questions.
